

HOPELESSNESS

after a string of failed relationships

From the age of 16, Sesi moved from one relationship to another, lasting no longer than a year with any one man.

“All my boyfriends either disappeared without reason or cheated on me. When I was 22, I met someone and our relationship was so good that I believed he was different from the other men I had dated before. Things however changed in just over a year, when I was seven months pregnant. I caught him red-handed with another woman where he lived. From that day he did not speak to me again. I was heartbroken and angry with him.

Even after I gave birth, he didn't come to see me or our child. Instead he asked me to send him the baby's pictures. That's when I became depressed and gave up on love,” she said.

Sesi was invited to attend services at the Universal Church when her child was six years old.

“I accepted the invite because I desired to find love, settle down and heal from my painful past.

A pastor suggested that I attend Wednesday services and ask God to heal me emotionally.

I also attended on Thursdays and prayed for a godly man who was going to love and respect me.

Three months later I no longer

“ That's when I became depressed and I gave up on love ” had anger as I had forgiven the father of my child and all the men who broke my heart,” she said.

That same year Sesi met Johannes whom she married five years later.

“I am happily married because God has taken care of all my heart's desires and given me inner peace,” she said.

